A List of Kharosthi Inscriptions.

By N. G. Majumdar.

PREFACE.

The following List of Kharosthi Inscriptions was originally intended to form part of a thesis, submitted in 1922, for the Premchand Roychand Studentship of the Calcutta University. About the beginning of the current year I had an opportunity of studying most of the inscriptions in detail, being deputed by the University to visit the Museums at Lahore, Taxila and Peshāwar. This fresh study, which was made possible for me by the late lamented Sir Asutosh Mookerjee, has now enabled me to present the list in a revised and more comprehensive Twelve years ago Professor Lüders published a systematic and up to date list of Brāhmī inscriptions (Appendix to Epigraphia Indica, Vol. X). An attempt is now made to place before scholars a similar list of Kharosthi inscriptions to facilitate research work. The list is to be regarded as preliminary to a detailed edition of the inscriptions in a corpus form, a task on which a renowned Norwegian scholar, Professor Sten Konow, is at present engaged.

As regards the method and plan adopted in this list a few words are I think necessary by way of explanation. I have included in it, as far as possible, all Kharosthi inscriptions that have so far been noticed or published by scholars. There are however a few which are noticed here for the first time purposely excluded from the list Sir Aurel Stein's Kharosthi documents from Central Asia. There are many Gandhara sculptures, e.g., the one from Kharkai (Cunningham, Arch. Surr Rep., Vol. V, pp. 54, 63 and Plates XII-XIII), bearing single. or only two or three Kharosthi letters No cognizance has been taken by me of such letters as they are not sufficient to be regarded as inscriptions. The Kharosthi inscriptions on coins, gems, rings and seals also do not come within the range of my present list as they require to be treated on an altogether differ-The epigraphs are arranged alphabetically according ent plan to the names of find spots. The mention of an inscription, when that happens to be noticed or published already, is followed by a list of the principal bibliographical references, which are given in a chronological order. Dated portions of a record, when there is a date, are quoted separately after bibliographic entries Next comes a summary of the text. I have however considered it useless to give abstracts of Aśoka's Shāhābāzgarhi and Mansehra edicts, because, they represent only variants of a text, principally known from its other recensions.

My thanks are due to Sir John Marshall, Director-General of Archæology in India, for giving me facility in carrying on investigation in the Museums containing Kharosthī inscriptions. I am also indebted to Mr. H. Hargreaves and Rai Bahadur Daya Ram Sahni, Superintendents, Archæological Survey, as well as to their Assistants, for the kind help and guidance I received in their own respective spheres. I also take this opportunity to express my debt of gratitude to my former teacher, Professor D. R. Bhandarkar, who has kindly gone through the whole of this manuscript and offered me a number of valuable suggestions

¹ The above is according to my interpretation. The inscription will be edited by me in the Epigraphia Induca. Rai Bahadur Daya Ram Sahni read the name of the month as Ispaila and Konow suspects that 'the month is Apellaios' and not Asvayuja (Act. Or., Vol. III, p. 70. n. 1). But there are no proper grounds for this suspicion. The reading which is given above is based on photographs and estampages kindly supplied by Mr Hargreaves, as well as on a personal inspection of the original stone.

Lying in a store room on the upper storey of the Museum. Accession no. 01873. The slab contains a number of holes, which were intended, as Mr. Hargreaves rightly suggests, to hold offerings of coins, a custom that continues even to the present day. A pavement slab, with a copper coin of $V\bar{a}_{\rm S}$ uideva in one of its holes, has actually been found at Jamālgarhi

³ The inscription reads as follows: (L 1) dinamukho (L 2) Makadaka-putrasa Vayira(sa).... (L. 3) samvatšavay: 1-100 1-1 kuo. In 1894 M. Senart read the last word of line 3 as bhu-ho and offered a rather fanciful interpretation; in 1922 I corrected it as bhuo (=bhūtaḥ), i.e., 'finished' Professor Sten Konow however suggested to me in a letter that the proper reading in his opinion would be $kuo \ (=k\bar{u}pah)$. The slightly damaged portion after Voyira I restored formerly as -sa thuro on the basis of inked estampages that were at my disposal. This also Professor Konow did not accept. Again he would prefer taking line I as continuation of line 3. After a careful examination of the original stone it now appears to me that too much credence was placed on estampages and that Prof. Konow's interpretation can alone be regarded as correct

In no. 42(0), which is inscribed just above no. 42(P), 'honour' $(p\tilde{u}j\tilde{u})$ is shown to the Tri-ratna-Buddha, Dharma and Samgha, and in the latter, to the place of Sakra, (i.e., where the gods dwell), which means honour to all the gods. Thus if we take nos O and P together a rational interpretation may be obtained. The reading Sakra is admittedly clear: to restore it as Saka, unless we are specially instified, is quite arbitrary. Sakkatthāna is well known from Buddhist literature. See e.g., Jataka Text, Vol IV, p. 242. The passage has been, however, generally similar expression in the Ara inscription (see no 1 above).

Elsewhere (Nr Asutosh Silver Jubilee Vols—Orient—part I, pp 467-470) I have shown why it should be read as siniracchara and not as sanivatsian, sameacsara and so on. The ligature cch has been missed by scholars, such as Franke, Luders and Konow, and Hærnle's defective hthograph (copied by Buhler in his Tafel I) is to blame. The right hand portion of the ligature is a regular c, its cross-bar does not meet the left hand upright and nurther has a waxy leg hanging down. The reading of sasone of the component parts of the ligature is therefore impossible. The waxy leg is the lower portion of c. Under the circumstances och would be the only probable reading.

* For the name see Lowenthal, Jour As. Noc. Beng. 1863. p. 3 and Fleet, Jour. Roy. As. Soc., 1905. p. 228. It is a station on the Nowshera-Dargai branch of the North Western Railway The hill Takht i Bāhi is 9 miles N.-W. of Mardan

5 Cunningham inadvertently mentions its find-spot as Shāhbazgarhi This statement does not occur in his later publications (e q. A.S.R., Vol. V). Cf however Konow, who expresses his doubts about Takht-i-Bāhi being the real find-spot of the inscription (Acta Orientalia, Vol. III, p. 59, n. 3) In all his later publications (e.g. Num Chron, 1890, p. 118) Cunningham definitely states that the stone came from Takht i-Bāhi where it was discovered by Dr. Leitner (loc cit, p. 58). See also Dowson's article in Jour Roy. As. Soc., 1875, p. 370, where he says that a rubbing of the inscription 'was brought from Takht i Bāhi by Dr Leitner.' There seem to be therefore no real grounds for thinking that the stone did not come from Takht-i Bāhi.
